Summary

A number of divestitures undertaken over the years have streamlined American International's business operations to a great extent, thereby creating synergies. Its cost-control efforts are also impressive. Disciplined use of funds for share buybacks has been accretive to its bottom line. The company's use of reinsurance plan also reduced its capital risk. Recent acquisitions have led to business expansion which should drive long term growth. However, the company remains exposed to weather-related catastrophe, which induces volatility to its earnings. High debt levels and low interest coverage ratio increase financial risk. Its trailing ROE, being lower than the industry average, also reflects its inefficiency in utilizing shareholders' funds. The company's shares have underperformed its industry on a year-to-date basis.

Overview

Founded in 1967 and based in New York, American International Group Inc. is a holding company, which through its subsidiaries, is engaged in a range of global insurance and insurance-related activities. It serves commercial, institutional and individual customers through a property-casualty (P&C) and life insurance and retirement services network. AIG common stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and Tokyo Stock Exchange.

Effective fourth-quarter 2017, AIG is reporting its core insurance operations under four segments:

General Insurance (64% of adjusted revenues in 2019) is a leading provider of insurance products and services for commercial and personal insurance customers. The segment offers a wide range of products to customers through a diverse, multichannel distribution network.

Life and Retirement (33%) consists of a broad portfolio of life insurance, retirement and institutional products offered through an extensive, multichannel distribution network.

Other Operations (3%) consists of businesses and items not attributed to the company's General Insurance and Life and Retirement segments or its Legacy Portfolio. It includes AIG Parent; Blackboard; AIG Fuji Life Insurance Company, Ltd. (Fuji Life), which was sold on April 30, 2017; United Guaranty Corporation (United Guaranty), which was sold on December 31, 2016; deferred tax assets related to tax attributes; corporate expenses and intercompany eliminations.

Legacy Portfolio includes Legacy General Insurance Run-Off Lines, Legacy Life and Retirement Run-Off Lines and Legacy Investments. Effective in 2018, the company's newly formed Bermuda domiciled composite reinsurer, DSA Reinsurance Company, Ltd. (DSA Re) will be part of the Legacy Portfolio.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ Divestitures: Over the years, AIG has been streamlining its core insurance operations and restructuring businesses by axing operations, thereby enhancing capital allocation and operating leverage. Since 2008, the company has executed over 50 asset sales and divestitures, resulting in proceeds in excess of $100 billion. These divestitures were made to generate proceeds for repaying the bailout funds to the U.S. government, simplify the company which had huge unrelated operations creating very little synergistic benefits, focus on core operations generating higher return on equity, and use funds for share buyback.
- ▲ Acquisitions: AIG has acquired Ellipse, a specialist provider of group life risk protection in the UK, from Munich Re. The transaction strengthens AIG's position in Life & Retirement businesses. The company recently completed the buyout of Validus Holdings, Ltd. and Glatfelter Insurance Group, which will strengthen its global General Insurance business. The company's CEO, Brian Duperreault, has made a significant shift in its capital utilization and now expects to utilize capital for possible buyouts in the international markets, boosting the company's personal and life lines segments plus investing in the domestic middle market as opposed to its hitherto usage of capital resource for share repurchases. This strategy should lead to long-term growth via business expansion.
- ▲ Revenues Catching Up: After suffering a decline in revenues from 2003-2018, the same has reversed in 2019 (up 3.4% year over year). This much awaited revenue reversal is a result of several strategic initiatives undertaken by the company, over the past two to three years. We believe, the revenue growth will continue and that the company has emerged out of its troubles.
- ▲ Cost Control Efforts: One of the company's top financial goals is to generate sustainable operating efficiency gains via reduction in net expenses. Such measures comprised a reduction in headcount, freezing of pension plans and divestiture of underperforming units. The initiatives led to a decline in expenses in 2016, 2017 and in 2018. Notably, general operating expenses or GOE declined 8% year over year in 2019. The company continues to execute initiatives focused on organizational simplification, operational efficiency and business rationalization. We believe that the company's initiatives will result in strict cost control, which will provide an extra cushion to its operating margins.
- ▲ Share Buyback to Aid Bottom line: In February 2019, the company authorized an additional increase to previous repurchase authorization of its common stock of $1.5 billion, resulting in an aggregate remaining authorization of nearly $2.0 billion. Share repurchases by the company will support to the bottom line, at a time when top-line growth is tough to achieve.
- ▲ Share Price Performance: Shares of the company have underperformed its industry, in a year's time. However, the company's strong fundamentals are likely to support its stock price in the coming quarters.

Strong capital position, strategic business de-risking and acquisitions, cost control efforts, accelerated capital deployment will drive growth.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Exposure to Catastrophe Loss: The company's property and casualty business exposes it to weather-related losses. It has been incurring catastrophe losses over the years that have weighed on its underwriting margins. For 2019, the company sustained cat loss of $1.27 billion, down nearly 55% year over year. Given its exposure to weather related losses, the company's earnings will continue to suffer.
- ▼ High Debt Level: The company's debt has been rising persistently since 2015. Its debt-to-equity ratio of 52.8% is higher than the industry average of 40%. Moreover, interest earned ratio of 4.73 times is lower than the industry average of 8.9 times, which signifies reduced ability of the company to serve interest payments, possessing high financial risk.
- ▼ Low Return on Equity (ROE): The company's ROE of 6.3% is lower than the industry average of 9.3%. This reflects the company's relative inefficiency in utilizing shareholders' funds.

Intense competition, low investment income, weak revenues, exposure to catastrophe losses pose risks.
