Summary

Continued sales growth in both retail DIY and commercial DIFM businesses is boosting the AutoZone's performance. Store expansion initiatives, fast delivery and high-quality products are improving the company's top-line growth. AutoZone's focus on expansion of the favorably located core business and development of the supply-chain network bode well. The company's omnichannel efforts to improve customer shopping experience strong share buyback program are boosting investors' confidence. However, high capital and operating expenses which are further expected to rise over the next few years may dent the firm's margins. Tariff impact on auto parts from China, and looming tariff conflicts from Japan and European Union are also headwinds. As such, investors are recommended to wait for a better entry point.

Overview

AutoZone, Inc. is one of the nation's leading specialty retailers and distributor of automotive replacement parts and accessories in the United States. It operates in the Do-It-Yourself retail, Do-It-for-Me auto parts and products markets.

As of Nov 23, 2019, the Company had 5,790 stores in the United States; 606 in Mexico; and 37 in Brazil. Thus, the total store count as of the date stood at 6,433. Each store offers wide-ranging products for cars, sport utility vehicles, vans and light trucks, including new and remanufactured automotive hard parts, maintenance items, accessories, and non-automotive products.

Beside opening and acquiring stores, the company divests stores in markets that are less profitable as well as shift stores to existing ones. In fiscal 2019, it opened 209 stores and relocated two to prevailing ones.

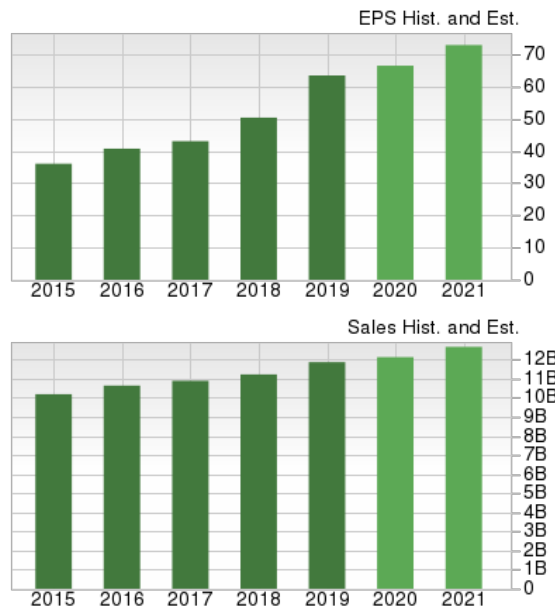

AutoZone selects and purchases merchandise from store support centers situated at Memphis, TN; Monterrey, Mexico; and Sao Paulo, Brazil. Also, it has office in Shanghai, China, to support its sourcing efforts in Asia.

Apart from providing automotive products, it also has many commercial sales programs, which provides commercial credit, and delivers parts and other products to local repair garages, dealers and service stations.

Additionally, AutoZone sells the ALLDATA brand's automotive diagnostic and repair software through www.alldata.com and www.alldatadiy.com. This offers comprehensive factory-correct repair information to DIY customers along with ALLDATA repair subscription.

The company has online presence to sell automotive hard parts, maintenance items, accessories and non-automotive products through its website www.autozone.com. For commercial customers, it has www.autozonepro.com to make purchases.

As of Aug 31, 2019, the company had roughly 96,000 employees, of which 58% consisted of full-time employees. Out of the total count, 90% are employed at the AutoZone stores or in direct field supervision. Further, 5% of those work at distribution centers while 5% work at store support and other functions.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ AutoZone's net sales are positively impacted by the growing market presence of DIY retail and commercial businesses. Store expansion initiatives, fast delivery and high-quality products are improving the company's market share as well as aiding in top-line growth. Notably, the firm's strong share buyback program is boosting investors' confidence.
- ▲ AutoZone is focusing on expansion of the favorably located core business and development of the supply-chain network. This will enable it to offer products at the local level, wherein customer demand is immediate. Inventory assortment improvements, technological advancements, strong reputation of the Duralast brand across the professional customer base and greater engagement from store operating teams are enabling the company to come to fruition.
- ▲ The company's omnichannel efforts to improve customer shopping experience are reaping profits. AutoZone's initiatives to enhance in-store systems and website traffic bode well for sales growth. Ship-to-home next day, buy online, pickup in store and commercial customer ordering are picking pace, increasing traffic to the company's online site.

AutoZone's fast deliveries, high-quality products and supply-chain network are likely to increase sales. Moreover, the company's frequent share repurchases enhance shareholder value.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ High capital and operating expenses are concerning for the company. It expects capital and operating expenses to rise over the next few years on opening of distribution centers, mega hubs and stores; technology investments; along with accelerated wage pressure. Further, the company's technology investments to improve electronic catalogue involves capital expenditure.
- ▼ AutoZone is increasing the frequency of deliveries to its stores to three or five times a week from once. While the company expects this strategy to be advantageous in the long term, its implementation is leading to gross margin headwinds of around 15–20 basis points every quarter due to higher supply chain costs. This headwind is expected to continue until the completion of the roll-out.
- ▼ Tariff impact on auto parts from China, and looming tariff conflicts from Japan and European Union may eat into some of the profits of the firm.

Cost headwinds related to the opening of distribution centers and increasing the frequency of deliveries to stores are concerns for AutoZone.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.
