Summary

Shares of DICK'S Sporting have outpaced the industry in the past three months. The stock received a boost after it started reopening stores at the end of May. Further, the company displayed strong online showdown amid the coronavirus pandemic. Also, management's decision to resume dividend payments is boosting investor confidence. However, its adjusted loss per share was wider than the Zacks Consensus Estimate during first-quarter fiscal 2020. Results were mainly hurt by the temporary store closures implemented to curb the coronavirus outbreak. Moreover, sales were impacted by dismal trends in the hardlines, apparel and footwear categories. Management withdrew fiscal 2020 view citing unprecedented impacts of COVID-19. Apart from these, elevated costs weighed on margins in the fiscal first quarter, which remains a concern.

Reasons To Buy:

▲ Store Reopening Boost Stock: Shares of DICK'S Sporting have skyrocketed 140.4% in the past three months outperforming the industry's growth of 74.4%. The stock's bullish run on the bourses can be attributable to its efforts to reopen stores following temporary store closures due to the novel coronavirus outbreak. In this regard, the company has reopened few stores since mid-April in sync with the CDC and local health guidelines. Moreover, roughly 80% of its stores were open as of the end of May. Going ahead, it remains on track to reopen more stores in the second and third quarters of fiscal 2020. The company highlighted that consolidated same-store sales have fallen 4% in the first four weeks of the second quarter, compared with a 29.5% decline in the fiscal first quarter. This suggests that the reopening of stores is aiding sales in the second quarter.

DICK'S Sporting is gaining from its solid online show which led to 110% year over year rise in e-commerce sales during first-quarter fiscal 2020. Also, store reopening efforts seem encouraging.

▲ Initiatives – Omni-channel Growth: DICK'S Sporting has been gaining from continued focus on developing every possible avenue to generate greater sales. As part of its long-term plan, the company plans to make significant investments in e-commerce, technology, store payroll, Team Sports and private brands. It also remains on track to build the best omni-channel experience for athletes by strengthening store network and expanding e-commerce presence. The company witnessed strong online show amid the coronavirus pandemic, which cushioned the top line in first-quarter fiscal 2020. While stores remained closed since middle of March, the company witnessed strong online demand and leveraged its omni-channel capabilities to fulfill online orders and serve customers. This resulted in 110% year over year rise in e-commerce sales during first-quarter fiscal 2020, which was nearly 39% of net sales. It had also rolled out new curbside pickup service across the United States to serve customers better. Post the launch, curbside sales represented more than 40% of total e-commerce sales. Further, the company noted that e-commerce spiked 210% post the store closures till the first-quarter end. Management also noted that solid online performance has continued in the second quarter even after stores reopened. Encouragingly, the company anticipates enhancing omni-channel experience through faster and more reliable deliveries, and improved functionality of its website in fiscal 2020.

On the store-front, it recently announced two types of concept stores namely OVERTIME by DICK'S Sporting Goods and DICK'S Sporting Goods Warehouse. This will bring the total number of outlet and clearance stores to 11 at nine different states. This move is in sync with its plans to expand outlet and clearance stores in a bid to offer popular athletic brands at discounted prices.

▲ Financial Flexibility: DICK'S Sporting's long-term debt at the end of first-quarter fiscal 2020 increased 59% sequentially to $4,255 million. Though its debt-to-capitalization ratio of 0.74 is higher than the industry's ratio of 0.66, its times interest earned ratio of 6.5 versus the industry's 3.1 indicates that it is better positioned to meet its debt obligations, compared to its peers. Moreover, the company had a cash balance of $1,484 million and $1.4 billion in outstanding borrowings under its $1.6-billion revolving credit facility as of May 2, 2020. Notably, the company's cash position remains sufficient to fund its short term obligations of about $506 million as of May 2, 2020. Moreover, it added $255 million to its revolving credit facility, bringing the total to roughly $1.9 billion in March. This is likely to help the company stay afloat amid the pandemic.

▲ Shareholder-Friendly Moves: DICK'S Sporting boasts a good history of returning value to shareholders. The company recently announced to resume dividend payment after it had suspended dividend payments in wake of the ongoing pandemic. Prior to suspension of dividends, it paid $28 million in the first quarter. Notably, it has approved a quarterly dividend of 31.25 cents per share, which is payable on Jun 30 to shareholders as of record on Jun 22. ## Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Dismal Q1 Results: Although sales were in-line with the Zacks Consensus Estimate, DICK'S Sporting adjusted loss per share was wider than expected. Further, both metrics declined year over year. Moreover, consolidated same-store sales slumped 29.5% due to temporary store closures (beginning Mar 18) implemented to curb the spread of the coronavirus outbreak. Sluggish transactions to the tune of 38.7%, somewhat offset by a rise of 9.2% in average ticket, hurt same-store sales. Also, hardlines, apparel and footwear categories delivered dismal performances. Additionally, management withdrew fiscal 2020 view citing unprecedented impacts of COVID-19.
- ▼ Elevated Costs a Threat to Margins: DICK'S Sporting's adjusted SG&A expenses, as a percentage of sales, increased 488 bps year over year to 30.2% due to a sales decline in the first quarter fiscal 2020. This led to soft gross margin for the reported quarter. Notably, adjusted gross margin contracted roughly 1,290 basis points (bps) to 16.5% in the quarter under review. Decline in merchandise margins to the tune of 475 bps and a 526-bps deleverage on occupancy costs also hurt margins to some extent. Going ahead, any further increase in costs can weigh in the company's bottom line.
- ▼ Seasonality Affects Performance: DICK'S Sporting's business is seasonal in nature and typically generates stronger sales during the fourth quarter, which is characterized by the holiday and winter sports selling seasons. As a result, the company is exposed to significant risks if the seasons fail to deliver the expected operating performance.
- ▼ Competitive Pressure: DICK'S Sporting faces intense competition from other sporting goods retailers on grounds of size, availability of financial, distribution and marketing resources, pricing strategies and retail sales methods. The company's inability to stay afloat amid such competition may result in loss of market share and adversely impact its business.

DICK'S Sporting's Q1 results were affected by temporary store closures due to curb the spread of this deadly virus. Also, it withdrew fiscal 2020 view citing uncertain impacts of COVID-19.

Zacks Stock Rating System

We offer two rating systems that take into account investors' holding horizons: Zacks Rank and Zacks Recommendation. Each provides valuable insights into the future profitability of the stock and can be used separately or in combination with each other depending on your investment style.

Zacks Recommendation

The Zacks Recommendation aims to predict performance over the next 6 to 12 months. The foundation for the quantitatively determined Zacks Recommendation is trends in the company's estimate revisions and earnings outlook. The Zacks Recommendation is broken down into 3 Levels; Outperform, Neutral and Underperform. Unlike many Wall Street firms, we have an excellent balance between the number of Outperform and Neutral recommendations. Our team of 70 analysts are fully versed in the benefits of earnings estimate revisions and how that is harnessed through the Zacks quantitative rating system. But we have given our analysts the ability to override the Zacks Recommendation for the 1200 stocks that they follow. The reason for the analyst over-rides is that there are often factors such as valuation, industry conditions and management effectiveness that a trained investment professional can spot better than a quantitative model.

Zacks Rank

The Zacks Rank is our short-term rating system that is most effective over the one- to three-month holding horizon. The underlying driver for the quantitatively-determined Zacks Rank is the same as the Zacks Recommendation, and reflects trends in earnings estimate revisions.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.

Value Score	D
Growth Score	F
Momentum Score	F
VGM Score	F

As an investor, you want to buy stocks with the highest probability of success. That means buying stocks with a Zacks Recommendation of Outperform, which also has a Style Score of an A or a B.
