Summary

Enbridge has the longest and most sophisticated crude oil and liquids pipeline system in the world that spreads across 17,018 miles. Also, in Canada, the company is touted to be the largest natural gas distributor. Notably, the company has a total of $11 billion of low-risk inventory of midstream growth projects, including the 118-mile PennEast Pipeline Project that will secure additional stable fee-based revenues for the years to come. However, the company's balance sheet has more debt exposure than the composite stocks belonging to the energy sector. Notably, the leading midstream energy firm added that the coronavirus pandemic resulted in a throughput cut of 400,000 barrels per day from the Mainline pipeline system in April. The firm expects throughput to reduce by an average of 400,000 to 600,000 Bbl/D in the June quarter of 2020.

Overview

Headquartered in Calgary, Alberta, Enbridge Inc. is a leading energy infrastructure company. One of its businesses is the transportation of energy through the most extensive and advanced crude and liquids pipeline system that spreads across 17,018 miles globally. Through the Mainline and Express pipelines, the company transports 2.8 million barrels of crude every day which accounts for almost 68% of the Canadian crude oil production that are transported to the U.S.

In North America, the company holds a leading position in the gathering, transportation, processing and storage of natural gas. In fact, in Canada, the company is touted to be the largest natural gas distributor. Enbridge also generates energy from wind and solar power, having a capacity of over 2,500 megawatts (MW) of net renewable.

In other words, Enbridge is the largest diversified midstream energy player and is responsible for transporting 25% of the crude volumes in North America. The firm is also responsible for transporting roughly 20% of North American natural gas volumes. In Ontario, Enbridge distributes approximately 2 billion cubic feet of gas on a daily basis.

Investors should know that Enbridge generates stable fee-based revenues from its diversified network of midstream assets. In 2018, the company placed online roughly $7 billion of new midstream energy projects while divesting non-core assets worth $8 billion. The midstream infrastructure provider also authorized new developments worth approximately $7 billion.

The company had about 17,000 employees that are mainly concentrated in Canada and the U.S. The company primarily operates through five segments: Liquids Pipelines, Gas Transmission and Midstream, Gas Distribution & Storage, Renewable Power Generation, and Energy Services. The first three segments reported adjusted earnings of C$7.7 billion, C$3.4 billion and C$1.7 billion, respectively, in 2019.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ Enbridge has the longest and most advanced crude and liquids pipeline system in the world that spreads over 17,018 miles. In Canada, the company is touted to be the largest natural gas distributor. Hence, it is quite obvious that a significant portion of the company's earnings is generated from transportation operations, driven by a string of long-term contracts. The substantial contract base will likely provide the company with stable cash flow in the coming years.
- ▲ For 2020, the company has reaffirmed its guidance for DCF per share at the band of C$4.50 to C$4.80, the top end of which suggests a rise from the 2019 DCF of $4.57. This reflects Enbridge's efforts in strengthening overall businesses by shedding non-core assets and adding profitable growth projects.
- ▲ The company has a total of $11 billion of low-risk inventory of midstream growth projects that are coming online since 2020 through 2023. This reflects the company's plan of securing additional fee-based revenues in the coming years. Its 118-mile PennEast Pipeline Project, which is expected to meet the growing demand of natural gas in New Jersey and Pennsylvania is commendable.

Enbridge will continue to earn stable fee-based revenues from its C$19-billion backlog of midstream energy projects.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ At the end of first-quarter 2020, the company reported total debt of C$68,627 million, and cash and cash equivalents of C$799 million. Its debt-to-capitalization ratio was almost 0.50 higher than the energy sector's 0.34. In fact, the ratio of the company has been consistently higher than the sector over the past year, reflecting more levered balance sheet. Notably, in the March quarter, the company's cash balance increased by 23% to C$799 million, which is not sufficient to cover short-term debt of C$5,056 million. Also, the company's ability to pay off a portion of total long-term debt of C$63,571 million is in question since there has been prolonged weakness in global energy demand without possibilities of recovery anytime soon. Moreover, considerably lower times interest earned ratio as compared to the sector has raised questions on the midstream firm's ability to pay off debt load.
- ▼ Over the past year, Enbridge has mostly been yielding lower dividend than the industry. Also, given the significantly higher payout of 113.6% as compared to the industry's 81.5%, the sustainability of the company's dividend payment is questionable as many energy firms are considering dividend cuts since global energy demand has been affected by the coronavirus pandemic.
- ▼ The company added that the pandemic, which is denting global energy demand, resulted in a throughput cut of 400,000 barrels per day (Bbl/D) from the Mainline pipeline system in April. The firm expects throughput to reduce by an average of 400,000 to 600,000 Bbl/D in the June quarter of 2020.

The firm's significant debt exposure is concerning.

Last Earnings Report

Enbridge Beats Earnings and Revenue Estimates in Q1

Enbridge reported first-quarter 2020 earnings per share of 62 cents, beating the Zacks Consensus Estimate of 51 cents and increasing from the year-ago quarter's profit of 61 cents. The outperformances were owing to higher contributions from Mainline System. This was partly offset by lower contributions from gas distribution & storage business.

Total revenues in the quarter declined 7.4% year over year to $8,957 million. However, the top line beat the Zacks Consensus Estimate of $8,517 million.

Distributable Cash Flow (DCF)

In first-quarter 2020, the company reported DCF of C$2,706 million compared with C$2,758 million a year ago.

Segment Analysis

Enbridge conducts business through five segments — Liquids Pipelines, Gas Transmission and Midstream, Gas Distribution and Storage, Renewable Power Generation and Energy Services.

Liquids Pipelines: The segment's adjusted earnings before interest, income taxes, and depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) amounted to C$1,919 million, up from C$1,729 million in the year-earlier quarter. Higher contributions from the Mainline System and Gulf Coast & Mid-Continent System primarily led to the outperformance.

Gas Transmission and Midstream: The segment's adjusted earnings totaled C$1,097 million, up from C$1,040 million in first-quarter 2019. Higher contributions from the US Gas Transmission business drove the upside.

Gas Distribution and Storage: The unit generated profit of C$609 million compared with C$693 million in the prior-year quarter. Warmer weather conditions hurt the segment's profit.

Renewable Power Generation: The segment recorded earnings of C$118 million, down from C$123 million in the prior-year quarter. A decline in wind resources at Canadian wind facilities primarily led to the segment's underperformance.

Energy Services: The segment generated a loss of C$13 million against a profit of only C$176 million in first-quarter 2019.

Balance Sheet

At the end of first-quarter 2020, the company reported total debt of C$68,627 million, and cash and cash equivalents of C$799 million. Its debt-to-capitalization ratio was almost 0.50.

Guidance

For 2020, the company has reaffirmed its guidance for DCF per share at the band of C$4.50 to C$4.80. Notably, in the wake of coronavirus pandemic, Enbridge decided on the deferral of roughly C$1 billion of planned secured growth capital budget for 2020. Also, the disruption in energy business owing to the virus outbreak led the midstream service provider to slash operating expense expectation for 2020 by C$300 million.

The company added that the pandemic, which is denting global energy demand, resulted in a throughput cut of 400,000 barrels per day (Bbl/D) from the Mainline pipeline system in April. The firm expects throughput to reduce by an average of 400,000 to 600,000 Bbl/D in the June quarter of 2020.

Recent News

Enbridge Agrees to Acquire NextDecade's Rio Bravo Pipeline – Feb 13, 2020

Enbridge agreed to acquire Rio Bravo Pipeline Company from NextDecade for less than $25 million in cash. The deal is expected to help Enbridge to serve the growing liquified natural gas export market. The pipeline is designed to ship 4.5 billion cubic feet of natural gas per day from Agua Dulce to Brownsville, TX.

Valuation

Enbridge shares are down 21.7% in the year-to-date period and 8.8% over the trailing 12-month period. Zacks Stock Rating System

We offer two rating systems that take into account investors' holding horizons: Zacks Rank and Zacks Recommendation. Each provides valuable insights into the future profitability of the stock and can be used separately or in combination with each other depending on your investment style.

Zacks Recommendation

The Zacks Recommendation aims to predict performance over the next 6 to 12 months. The foundation for the quantitatively determined Zacks Recommendation is trends in the company's estimate revisions and earnings outlook. The Zacks Recommendation is broken down into 3 Levels; Outperform, Neutral and Underperform. Unlike many Wall Street firms, we have an excellent balance between the number of Outperform and Neutral recommendations. Our team of 70 analysts are fully versed in the benefits of earnings estimate revisions and how that is harnessed through the Zacks quantitative rating system. But we have given our analysts the ability to override the Zacks Recommendation for the 1200 stocks that they follow. The reason for the analyst over-rides is that there are often factors such as valuation, industry conditions and management effectiveness that a trained investment professional can spot better than a quantitative model.

Zacks Rank

The Zacks Rank is our short-term rating system that is most effective over the one- to three-month holding horizon. The underlying driver for the quantitatively-determined Zacks Rank is the same as the Zacks Recommendation, and reflects trends in earnings estimate revisions.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.

Value Score	B
Growth Score	C
Momentum Score	A
VGM Score	B

As an investor, you want to buy stocks with the highest probability of success. That means buying stocks with a Zacks Recommendation of Outperform, which also has a Style Score of an A or a B.
