Summary

Shares of Eaton Vance have outperformed the industry over the past year. The company has an impressive earnings surprise history. Its earnings have surpassed the Zacks Consensus Estimate in three and met in one of the trailing four quarters. Revenue growth is expected to continue, driven by solid assets under management (AUM) balance, and diverse product offerings and investment strategies. Moreover, the company's global footprint is expected to keep supporting growth in the long term. Its impressive capital deployment activities reflect strong liquidity position and will continue enhancing shareholder value. However, persistently increasing expenses (owing to higher compensation costs) are expected to hurt the bottom line to an extent in the near term. The presence of high levels of debt may hamper financials and makes us apprehensive.

Overview

Headquartered in Boston, MA, Eaton Vance Corp. operates as an independent investment manager, and offers a wide range of investment products and services. Incorporated in 1981, it has offices U.S., U.K., Singapore, Australia and Japan. The company's total AUM was $518.2 billion as of Jan 31, 2020.

The company operates its business through one segment, called investment adviser to funds and separate accounts. Eaton Vance manages its AUM through the following investment vehicles:

Open-end Funds (constituting 20.9% of AUM as of Jan 31, 2020): Funds included in the segment consist of equity funds, state and national municipal income funds, taxable fixed-income and cash-management funds, floating-rate bank loan funds, alternative funds, and multi-asset funds.

Closed-end Funds (4.8%): This segment is comprised of municipal bond, domestic and global equity, bank loan, multi-sector income and taxable income funds.

Private Funds (9.1%): Through this segment, Eaton Vance manages equity funds, which are privately offered, to ensure that the diversification and tax-management needs of high-net-worth clients are met.

Institutional Separate Accounts (33.8%): The company provides services to a wide range of clients through this segment which include government, corporate and union retirement plans, endowments and foundations, nuclear-decommissioning trusts and asbestos litigation trusts, sovereign wealth funds and investment funds funded by others for which they serve as a sub-adviser.

Individual separate accounts (31.4%): Eaton Vance provides tailored investment services to high-net-worth and family office clients, per their individual requirements. Also, the company serves individual investors.

The company's fiscal year ends on Oct 31.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ Eaton Vance's top-line growth looks impressive. Revenues (on a GAAP basis) witnessed a CAGR of 7.8% over the last four fiscal years (2016-2019), with the uptrend continuing in first-quarter fiscal 2020. The increase was mainly driven by improving AUM balance. Moreover, the company's diverse product offerings and investment strategies will continue to attract investors, which along with improving AUM balance, are expected to support revenue growth in the upcoming quarters.
- ▲ Eaton Vance's total AUM has been witnessing consistent improvement. Over the last four fiscal years (2016-2019), AUM recorded a CAGR of 13.9%, with the uptrend continuing in the first three months of fiscal 2020. The increasing trend is expected to continue in the upcoming quarters driven by net inflows.
- ▲ We remain encouraged by Eaton Vance's impressive capital deployment activities. In October 2019, the company announced a dividend hike for the 39th consecutive fiscal year. Also, the company has a share-repurchase plan in place. In July 2019, it announced a new repurchase authorization of 8 million shares, replacing the prior buyback plan announced in October 2018. As of Jan 31, 2020, 4.9 million shares remained available under its buyback authorization. Given a strong capital position and decent earnings growth, the company will be able to sustain its capital-deployment plans, thus enhancing shareholder value.
- ▲ Eaton Vance's trailing 12-month return on equity (ROE) reflects its superiority in terms of utilizing shareholders' funds. The company's ROE of 35.29% compares favorably with 13.31% for the industry.

Consistent organic growth and strong assets under management balance are expected to be key growth drivers for Eaton Vance. Further, enhanced capital deployments reflect a strong liquidity position.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Eaton Vance's expenses have witnessed a CAGR of 5.4% over the last four fiscal years (2016-2019), with the trend continuing in first-quarter fiscal 2020. Rise in compensation costs, as well as fund-related charges, are expected to keep expenses high in the future. Thus, elevated costs are expected to hurt the bottom line to some extent.
- ▼ High debt level of the company could restrict it from procuring additional finance for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions, debt service requirements or other purposes. As of Jan 31, 2020, Eaton Vance's debt amounted to $620.7 million (15.3% of total assets). Further, the company's debt/equity ratio is higher than the industry average. High debt obligation, if combined with unfavorable economic and industry conditions, can drag the company to a relatively disadvantageous position.
- ▼ Shares of Eaton Vance have outperformed the industry over the past year. However, the company's fiscal 2020 earnings estimates have been revised 2.5% lower over the past 30 days. Further, the stock seems overvalued when compared with the broader industry. Its current price-book and price-earnings (F1) ratios are above the respective industry averages. Therefore, given the concerns and negative estimate revisions, the impressive price performance is not expected to continue in the near term.

High debt levels and mounting expenses (mainly due to higher compensation costs) remain major concerns for Eaton Vance in the near term. A stretched valuation limits the stock's upside potential.
