Summary

The firm's strategic acquisitions to improve product offerings and expand geographical footprint is commendable. Buyouts of PartsPoint, Inenco and Alliance Automotive Group will bolster the company's growth, going forward. Moreover, the firm's efforts to streamline its portfolio through sale of non-core business, is likely to aid it to trim its leverage and use the proceeds to invest in growth projects. The company's dividend aristocrat status boosts investors' confidence. However, the management dialed back the firm's revenue projections for 2019. Challenging sales environment in Europe and increasing SG&A costs remain concerns. Higher commodity costs amid tariff woes remain also needs to be factored in. Hence, investors are recommended to wait for a better entry point.

Overview

Genuine Parts Company, based in Atlanta, GA, distributes automotive and industrial replacement parts and materials, and business products across the United States, Canada, Mexico,Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, Indonesia, France, the U.K., Germany and Poland. As of Dec 31, 2018, it employed approximately 50,000 people worldwide. Currently, the company operates through three segments:

The largest segment of Genuine Parts, Automotive Parts Group contributed 56.2% of net sales in 2018. The segment's distribution centers provide replacement parts (other than body parts) formotor vehicles. Additionally, it distributes replacement parts for small engines, farm equipment and heavy-duty equipment. The group comprises National Automotive Parts Association ("NAPA") automotive parts distribution centers and stores. In 2018, the company operated 57 domestic NAPA automotive parts distribution centers in 40 states and roughly 1,100 domestic company-owned NAPA auto parts stores in 46 states. The segment also operates Alliance Automotive Group ("AAG"), a European distributor of vehicle parts, tools and workshop equipment that was acquired in 2017 for €1.7 billion.

Another segment, Industrial Parts Group, operates as Motion Industries, Inc. ("Motion") contributed 33.6% of net sales in 2018. The segment provides industrial replacement parts and related supplies such as bearings, mechanical and electrical power transmission products, industrial automation, hose, hydraulic and pneumatic components, industrial and safety supplies, and material handling products. The group operated 559 branches, 15 distribution centers, 42 service centers and four fabrication facilities as ofDec31, 2018.

Effective Jan 1, 2018, EIS, Inc., a subsidiary of Genuine Parts became a division of the Industrial segment that operates as Electrical Specialties Group of Motion.

Business Products Group operates through the company's wholly-owned subsidiary, S.P. Richards Company ("SPR"). In 2018, it contributed 10.2% in net sales. The segment engages in the distribution of a broad line of office and other business-related products.

Reasons To Buy:

- Genuine Parts' strategic acquisitions to improve product offerings and expand geographical footprint is commendable. Genuine Parts' acquisition of PartsPoint and Alliance Automotive Group will bolster the company's growth. Further, Alliance Automotive's deal to acquire Todd Group to expand heavy-duty parts and service offerings also bodes well. Moreover, buyouts of Axis New England and Axis NewYork are also fueling Genuine Parts' Industrial Parts Group.

Genuine Parts' strategic acquisitions to improve product offerings and expand geographical footprint is commendable.

- The company expects North American automotive aftermarket to gain positive momentum in the coming period. Apart from North America, Genuine Parts is witnessing steady growth across the Asia-Pacific region. The company expanded the industrial footprint into Australasia through the acquisition of remaining 65% stake of Inneco. The possession of full ownership in Inenco is a significant addition to the company's global industrial portfolio, and is likely to lead to various operational and commercial synergies going forward.

- Genuine Parts steady dividend growth is major positive for income investors. The company's return on equity ratio of 23.2% vs industry's 16.5% reflects the efficiency of the firm in utilizing shareholders' funds. The company's dividend aristocrat status boosts the investors' confidence. The company displays a dividend yields of 3% vs industry's 1.5%.

- Genuine Parts' ramped up investment in Sparesbox, which is Australia's leading online auto parts and accessories business, is likely to bolster the firm's our digital sales capabilities in Australasia, and potentially across all of our global operations. Moreover, the firm's efforts to streamline its portfolio through sale of non-core business, including the recent divestment of Electrical Specialties Group, helps it to trim its leverage and use the proceeds to invest in growth projects.

Reasons To Sell:

- Genuine Parts drab outlook for 2019 has dampened the investors' concern. Considering the impact of the sale of the Electrical Specialties Group of Motion Industries, the company downwardly revised its guidance. It now expects sales to increase 3.5% versus the prior view of 4.5-5.5% growth. The company currently expects adjusted earnings per share within $5.60-$5.68 compared with the previous forecast of $5.65-$5.75.

The company's drab revenue and earnings projections for 2019 has dampened investors' confidence.

- Declining sales in Europe, especially in United Kingdom, amid the effects of Brexit and softer economic environment remains a headwind. Although the company is working on continuing growth plans in the region, along with cost-saving initiatives, it expects challenging sales environment in Europe to persist through early 2020.

- Development of technically-enhanced components along with high tariff charges on aluminum and steel sourced from outside the United States has increased manufacturing costs of replacement parts and components.

- The company has been bearing the brunt of increasing selling, general and administrative expenses since the past several quarters and the trend is expected to continue. This is likely to clip the profit margins, going forward. As it is, the company's debt burden is on the rise since the past few quarters. Further, unfavorable foreign currency transactions have also been affecting the bottom-line of the firm since and the trend is likely to persist.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.

Value Score	C
Growth Score	A
Momentum Score	B
VGM Score	A

As an investor, you want to buy stocks with the highest probability of success. That means buying stocks with a Zacks Recommendation of Outperform, which also has a Style Score of an A or a B.
