Summary

Helen of Troy's shares have outperformed the industry in the past year. The company is benefitting from strength in Leadership Brands, robust online sales and core business advancements. These factors drove its third-quarter fiscal 2020 results, with the top and the bottom line rising year over year. Also, management raised its sales and adjusted earnings guidance for fiscal 2020. In fact, investment in Leadership Brands and online business form part of the company's transformation plans. Toward this end, Helen of Troy recently inked a deal to buy Drybar Products, which is expected to generate additional sales and contribute to earnings in fiscal 2020. However, such investments, along with elevated freight and distribution costs are likely to limit growth. Also, the company continues to see softness in its Health & Home unit.

Overview

Founded in Texas in 1968, Helen of Troy is a leading consumer products player that operates through a diversified portfolio of renowned brands. The company, which was reorganized in Bermuda in 1994, has created a robust market position through its focus on product innovation, quality and effective pricing.

Helen of Troy operates through the following segments:

Housewares segment offers products required in cooking, cleaning, beverage services and other activities to make consumers' daily life convenient. Housewares sales are mainly made to retailers, alongside some direct-to-consumer distribution.

Health & Home segment offers products related to home environment and healthcare. Segment sales here are also mainly directed to retailers, alongside some direct-to-consumer distribution.

Beauty segment sells a wide range of personal care and beauty appliances products mainly to retailers and supply wholesalers.

The company divested its Nutritional Supplements segment in December 2017, through the sale of Healthy Directions LLC and its subsidiaries.

The company sells its products through merchandisers, warehouse clubs, home improvement stores, grocery and specialty stores, drugstore chains, wholesalers and distributors. Products of the company are marketed under a number of trademarks, many of which the company owns and some which have been licensed. In fact, substantial portion of revenues in the company's Beauty and Health & Home segments depend on continued use of trademarks licensed under various agreements. Further, the company extensively collaborates with retailers to come up with new product versions with exclusive designs and packaging.

Helen of Troy's products are marketed in over 90 countries. Sales in the United States amounted to nearly 78%, 79% and 79% of total net sales revenue in fiscal 2019, 2018 and 2017, respectively.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ Sturdy Q3 Results & Raised View: Helen of Troy delivered a strong performance during third-quarter fiscal 2020, with the top and the bottom line increasing year over year. Given a robust year-to-date performance and solid expectations for the rest of fiscal 2020, management raised its sales and adjusted earnings guidance. Consolidated net sales are now projected in the range of $1.650-$1.675 billion, which indicates growth of 5.5-7.1% year over year. Previously, the company projected consolidated net sales growth in the range of 2.9-4.8%.

Adjusted earnings from continuing operations are projected in the range of $8.9-$9.1 per share compared with the earlier view of $8.5-$8.75. We note that the company's impressive past performance, strength in Leadership Brands and growth in online business has been driving its stock. Shares of the company have gained 19.7% in the past year outperforming the industry's decline of 34.8%.

- ▲ Focus on Leadership Brands: Helen of Troy has been focused on making solid investments in its "Leadership Brands," which is a portfolio of market leading brands. Brands in this portfolio, including OXO, Honeywell, Braun, PUR, Hydro Flask, Vicks and Hot Tools, are positioned well to enhance market share. These brands account for a significant chunk of the company's sales, which generate solid margins and volumes. The company's constant investments in these brands that are considered most productive have been delivering robust results.

Markedly, Leadership Brands' sales improved nearly 8.9% year over year in fiscal 2019. Also, during the third quarter of fiscal 2020, sales from Leadership Brands improved 10.6%. Notably, management remains on track with investments in product launches, marketing efforts and e-commerce strategies for Leadership Brands. In fact, the company made another move in this direction, when it inked a deal to buy Drybar Products. This is likely to mark the company's eighth Leadership Brand. The transaction, which is likely to close on January 31, 2020, is expected to generate additional sales in the range of $5-$6 million as well as adjusted earnings of 2-3 cents per share in fiscal 2020.

- ▲ Solid Digital Efforts: The company is likely to keep gaining from its consistent online sales and digital marketing efforts. Notably, online sales advanced roughly 30% year over year in fiscal third quarter and contributed nearly 24% to the company's top line.

Management plans to make continued investments in this arena, in an attempt to keep pace with the evolving consumer environment. In fact, the company is persistently augmenting its digital presence through sophisticated marketing plans and improved content.

- ▲ Sturdy Growth in Housewares Unit: Helen of Troy's Houseware unit has been experiencing sturdy growth. Net sales in the segment advanced 28.2% in fiscal third quarter, following 22.1% rise during fiscal second quarter and 23.6% in the quarter preceding it. In fiscal third quarter, net sales in the Housewares segment were backed by growth in point of sale, increased distribution with brick and mortar customers, higher online sales, improved international sales and new product launches. In fact, improved brick-and-mortar business in Housewares drove the company's core business in the quarter. Encouragingly, sales in the Housewares unit are now expected to increase 19-21% compared with 13-15% growth projected earlier.

- ▲ Transformation Plan on Track: Helen of Troy concluded Phase I of its multi-year transformation plan and is on track with Phase II, which is expected to drive growth for the next five years. Phase II of the plan includes continued investments in Leadership Brands, with plans to grow the same through customer-friendly innovations, international expansion and acquisitions. In this context, the company recently announced its plans to acquire Drybar Products LLC, which is expected to strengthen the Beauty segment.

Also, the company aims to enhance its operating efficiency and shared service facility. Long-term goals of Helen of Troy's transformation plan include better organic sales growth, continued margin expansion and efficient capital allocation.

Management remains on track with investments in Leadership Brands, which has been supporting top-line growth. Also, the company's online business and Housewares unit are yielding well.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Weak Health & Home Unit: Net sales in the Health & Home segment dropped 1.1% to $185.8 million in fiscal third quarter, mainly due to a decline in the core business stemming from change in net retail distribution network. Tough year-over-year comparisons and lower wildfire activities impacted results. Moreover, Health & Home net sales are now anticipated to decline 2-4% compared with the previous expectation of low-single digits decline for fiscal 2020.
- ▼ Elevated Costs: Helen of Troy is facing escalated costs. In fiscal third quarter, the company faced higher freight and distribution costs. In fact, management expects fiscal 2020 bottom line to be affected by increase in investments, higher incentive compensation expenses as well as elevated freight and distribution costs. Higher expenses are expected to stem from strong demand in the Housewares and the Beauty segments along with integration activity and increase in capacity.
- ▼ Currency Headwinds: Helen of Troy's international presence exposes it to risks associated with adverse currency movements. The same was in fact noticed in the third quarter of fiscal 2020, wherein the top line was hurt by unfavorable currency fluctuations to the tune of around $2.3 million. Volatility in currency movements is a concern.
- ▼ Cough/Cold/Flu Variability: Seasonality is a major concern for Helen of Troy's Health & Home segment, which is extremely correlated to the severity of winter and occurrence of cold/cough/flu. Notably, the company's thermometer sales are correlated to pediatric fever and Vicks humidifier sales are associated with congestion and cough. The cold/cough/flu season usually begins from October, with December to March marking its peak.

Sluggish Health & Home unit sales are a concern for Helen of Troy. Additionally, rising costs and adverse currency movements are worries.

Last Earnings Report

Helen of Troy Q3 Earnings & Sales Rise Y/Y

Helen of Troy Limited released third-quarter fiscal 2020 results, wherein the top and the bottom line increased year over year. Sturdy performance in the Housewares and Beauty segments boosted results. Moreover, management raised sales and adjusted earnings guidance for fiscal 2020.

Results in Detail

Adjusted earnings from continuing operations improved 30% year over year to $3.12 per share. Higher operating income in the Housewares segment and lower advertising expenses were primary drivers.

Net sales rose 10.1% year over year to $474.7 million. The upside was driven by a 10.7% rise in the core business, nearly 30% increase in online sales and 10.6% growth in Leadership brands.

Notably, core business growth was supported by improved brick and mortar sales in the Housewares unit, solid consolidated online sales and strong appliance sales in the Beauty division. These were offset by softness in Health & Home segment sales and sluggishness in the personal care business in the Beauty segment. Additionally, unfavorable currency movements were a hindrance to the tune of about $2.3 million.

Consolidated gross margin improved 2 percentage points to 44.2%, courtesy of higher mix of Housewares sales as well as favorable product and channel mix in the Housewares segment. This was partly countered by a smaller mix of personal care sales in the Beauty segment.

Adjusted operating income improved 27.8% to $90.3 million and adjusted operating margin rose 2.6 percentage points to 19%.

Segment Performance

Net sales in the Housewares segment rallied 28.2% to $183.2 million, courtesy of growth in point of sale, increased distribution with brick and mortar customers, higher online sales, improved international sales and new product launches. These positives were somewhat offset by currency headwinds of about 0.3%. Adjusted operating income in the unit rallied 36.8% and the adjusted operating margin improved 150 basis points (bps) to 24.3%.

Net sales in the Health & Home segment dropped 1.1% to $185.8 million mainly due to a decline in the core business. These factors were partially offset by sales from new product launches and improved international sales. The segment was affected by net foreign currency fluctuations of roughly 0.6%. Adjusted operating income improved 17.7%, while adjusted operating margin expanded 250 bps to 15.5%.

Sales in the Beauty segment improved 5.4% to $105.7 million, owing to solid demand and new products in the appliance business along with strong online and international sales. The upside was countered by softness in the personal care business and adverse foreign currency impact to the tune of roughly 0.8%. Adjusted operating income rose 24.7% and adjusted operating margin expanded 250 bps to 16%.

Other Financial Details

The company ended the quarter with cash and cash equivalents of $19.6 million and total debt of $244.2 million.

Net cash from operating activities during the first nine months of fiscal 2020 came in at $101.4 million.

Fiscal 2020 Outlook

Management is impressed with the company's third-quarter performance, marked by core sales growth, solid adjusted earnings per share increase and enhanced operating margin. This indicates that the company's growth investments and digital efforts are yielding. Further, Helen of Troy is on track with Phase II of its Transformation plan. To this end, the company recently announced its plans to acquire Drybar Products LLC, which is expected to strengthen the Beauty segment.

Given a robust year-to-date performance and solid expectations for the rest of fiscal 2020, management raised sales and adjusted earnings guidance. Consolidated net sales are now projected in the range of $1.650-$1.675 billion, indicating growth of 5.5-7.1% year over year. Earlier, the company expected consolidated net sales growth in the range of 2.9-4.8%.

Sales in the Housewares unit are expected to increase 19-21% compared with 13-15% growth projected earlier. Health & Home net sales are now anticipated to decline 2-4% compared with the previous expectation of low-single digits decline. Beauty segment net sales are likely to improve 3-5% compared with a low-single digit growth projected earlier.

Finally, adjusted earnings from continuing operations are projected to be $8.9-$9.1 per share compared with the earlier view of $8.5-$8.75. However, to some extent earnings are expected to be hurt by increase in investments, higher incentive compensation expenses as well as elevated freight and distribution costs. Higher expenses are expected to stem from strong demand in Housewares and Beauty segments along with integration activity and increase in capacity.

Recent News

Helen of Troy Acquires Drybar Products – Jan 24, 2020

Helen of Troy completed the previously announced buyout of Drybar Products LLC for roughly $255 million in cash. Notably, Drybar Products will mark Helen of Troy's eighth Leadership Brand.

Earlier, Helen of Troy had stated that the acquisition includes the Drybar trademark along with other intellectual property assets related to Drybar's products. As part of the agreement, Helen of Troy will allow Drybar Holdings LLC to continue using the Drybar trademark in the Drybar salons worldwide. Drybar is an innovative and fast-growing hair care and styling brand, which will strengthen Helen of Troy's Beauty segment. Notably, Drybar products include superior and on-trend hair appliances, accessories and liquids.

We note that apart from its salons, Drybar products has been gaining traction across major retailers. Clearly, Drybar Products is likely to be a solid fit for Helen of Troy. Encouragingly, the Drybar Products acquisition is expected to be immediately accretive to Helen of Troy's results. In an earlier press release, management stated that the acquisition is anticipated to augment Helen of Troy's rate of consolidated sales growth, gross margin, adjusted EBITDA margin, the bottom line and cash flow from operations. Further, the buyout is expected to boost the Beauty segment's comparable operating metrics in particular.
