Summary

Owl Rock has been witnessing a strong revenue momentum since 2015, owing to increasing interest income. It boasts a solid diversified portfolio of investments in middle-market companies, comprising numerous new investment commitments. Its profile reflects variety across 27 industries. The company continues to seek opportunities in stable, large and recession-resistant businesses, which, in turn, will aid top-line growth. It has also been effectively reducing its debt level over the last few quarters. Its shares have lost lower than its industry in a year's time. Nevertheless, we believe that the company's strong capital position should enable business investments and drive its shares going forward. However, Owl Rock has been witnessing an elevated expense level due to growth investments, which might put pressure on its margins.

Reasons To Buy:

▲ Growing Top Line: The company has been witnessing strong revenue growth since its inception in 2015 on the back of higher interest income. In fact, its top line saw a 2016-2019 CAGR of 195%, which is impressive. The upside can be attributable to higher interest income. A steady rise in revenues, primarily from the company's rapidly-growing interest income and growth strategies, is likely to pave the way for long-term growth.

Growing top line on the back of interest income and a steady investment portfolio are key positives for the company. Its strong capital position also impresses.

▲ Increasing Investment Commitments: The company also boasts a strong portfolio of investments in companies consisting of several new commitments. The uptick is evident from its new investment commitments' CAGR of 127.9% during the 2016-2018 period. Although the same declined 14.7% year over year in 2019, the company's commitment to new portfolio companies remains impressive. This metric basically reflects its commitments to a particular portfolio company. This upside, in turn, has a favorable effect on the company's net assets. This also reflects the company's strong portfolio.

The company ended 2019 with 98 portfolio companies, the average investment size in each portfolio company being $89.8 million based on fair value, up 13.4% year over year. The company continues to seek opportunities in stable, large and recession-resistant businesses. Given the company's robust portfolio, the top line is continued to be favored.

- ▲ Solid Capital Position: The company has an impressive capital position. On the back of its solid balance sheet position, it recently announced a dividend to enhance shareholder value. Its dividend yield stands at 9.2%, much higher than its industry's average of 2.2%. Its dividend equates to an annualized dividend yield of 10.2% on book value. Moreover, its leverage ratio (total debt to equity) stands at 50.8%, much lower than its industry's average of 186.9%. It also came up with a 10b5-1 buyback program. The company's board approved six consecutive quarterly special dividends, which commenced in the third quarter of 2019 and will run through the fourth quarter of 2020. This reflects adequate financial flexibility.
- ▲ Share Price Performance: Shares of the company have lost lower than its industry in a year's time. The stock is expected to bounce back on the back of its strong fundamentals, such as steady capital position and a strong portfolio.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Low Return on Equity: Its return on equity a profitability measure stands at 9.2%, much lower than the industry's average of 22.2%. This reflects the company's relative inefficiency in using shareholder's funds.
- ▼ Escalating Expenses: Owl Rock's expenses have been rising over the last few years. Its operating expenses escalated 116% and 104%, respectively, in 2018 and 2019, which is a persistent concern for us. The company is likely to witness increasing costs going forward due to its investments, which in turn, might put pressure on the company's margins.

Elevated expense level and a weak return on equity are major headwinds hounding the company.
