Summary

Over the past year, Tetra Tech's shares have outperformed the industry. The company is currently focusing on high-end consulting and engineering services. It remains bullish about its growth prospects for the U.S. federal, U.S. state and local, U.S. commercial, and international clients. In first-quarter fiscal 2020, the company's earnings surpassed estimates by 9.1% and grew 20% year over year. For fiscal 2020, it anticipates adjusted earnings of $3.40-$3.55 per share, up from $3.35-$3.55 per share mentioned earlier. For the fiscal year, the company expects revenues of $2.4-$2.6 billion, whereas it recorded $2.4 billion in fiscal 2019. However, the stock looks overvalued compared with the industry. Rising costs, concerns related to the U.S. federal business and headwinds related to international exposure might be concerning.

Overview

Headquartered in Pasadena, Tetra Tech is a leading provider of consulting, construction management, engineering, program management and technical services. It serves clients by providing cost-effective and innovative solutions on dealing with the fundamental needs for water, environmental and alternative energy services. Tetra Tech's has a diverse base of international and U.S. commercial clients, as well as U.S. federal and U.S. state and local government agencies.

Tetra Tech reports its businesses under the following two segments:

Government Services Group: This segment encompasses operations with U.S. government clients (federal, state and local) and all activities with development agencies.

Notably, the segment offers consulting and engineering services globally for a wide range of U.S. government clients. Some of the notable services offered are environmental monitoring, water and waste management, sustainable infrastructure design, international development and various civil infrastructure master planning and engineering design for transportation, facilities, as well as regional and local development.

Commercial / International Services Group: This segment includes activities with U.S. commercial clients and all international activities excluding work performed for development agencies. The segment provides various services like environmental remediation, infrastructure and related environmental and geotechnical services as well as engineering and project management services.

Reasons To Buy:

▲ Over the past year, Tetra Tech's shares have gained 21.2% compared with the industry's decline of 5.5%. In first-quarter fiscal 2020, the company's earnings surpassed estimates by 9.1% and grew 20% from the year-ago quarter. The bottom-line results benefited from sales growth and margin improvement. In a bid to maximize growth prospects, the company is currently focusing on high-end consulting and engineering services, which are helping it promote high-value and high-margin business, thus differentiating it from peers in the marketplace. For fiscal 2020, the company anticipates adjusted earnings of $3.40-$3.55 compared with $3.35-$3.55 mentioned earlier. Also, it expects earnings of 73-78 cents per share in second-quarter fiscal 2020, whereas it reported 70 cents in the year-ago quarter.

Tetra Tech is enjoying strong backlog level. Also, strengthening client businesses, acquired assets and shareholder-friendly policies remain tailwinds for the company.

- ▲ Tetra Tech's top-line performance in first-quarter fiscal 2020 was impressive, with sales beating estimates by 0.9% and rising 11.1% year over year. Backlog at the end of the quarter grew 13.3% year over year to $3,166 million. For fiscal 2020, the company expects sales from the U.S. federal clients to increase 5-10% on growth in the U.S. federal budget. It anticipates sales from the U.S. commercial clients to grow 3-8%, benefiting from sustainable buildings and environmental services. Also, the company expects the U.S. state and local sales to increase 10-15% on strengthening disaster recovering and municipal water infrastructure businesses. It projects International sales growth of 7-12%, driven by environmental and infrastructure programs. Tetra Tech anticipates net revenues of $2.4-$2.6 billion for fiscal 2020 and $580-$630 million for the second quarter. The mid-point of $605 million of the second quarter projection is higher than $585.4 million recorded in the year-ago quarter.
- ▲ Tetra Tech believes that its acquisitive nature will aid in strengthening data analytical capabilities and business expansion in Europe and the U.K. In July 2019, the company acquired shares of WYG plc, a provider of engineering and consulting services. The buyout is strengthening Tetra Tech's global presence, especially in the U.K. and Europe, and business in environment, water and infrastructure markets. Further, in April 2019, the company acquired eGlobalTech. The buyout has been strengthening Tetra Tech's business from commercial and government customers. eGlobalTech launched an Al solution named Auxilium in July 2019. Moreover, Tetra Tech has consistently returned significant cash to shareholders through dividends and share repurchases. During the first quarter fiscal 2020, the company bought back shares worth $21.2 million and distributed dividends totaling $8.2 million. Notably, quarterly dividend rate was hiked by 25% in April 2019. Also, in January 2020, the company received approval for a new $200-million share buyback program. Exiting the fiscal first quarter, it is left with $304 million of share repurchase authorization.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ On an EV/EBITDA (TTM) basis, Tetra Tech's stock looks overvalued compared with the industry, with the respective tallies of 18.4x and 11.37x. Also, the company's current multiple is higher than the industry's one-year highest level of 13.17x. In addition to stock's overvaluation compared with the industry, lowered earnings estimates for the company make us cautious. In the past 60 days, the consensus estimate for its earnings has been lowered by 3.8% to 76 cents per share for the fiscal second quarter and by 2.1% to 92 cents for the third quarter.
- ▼ Escalating costs have been concerning Tetra Tech over the past few quarters. For instance, the company's subcontractor costs and other cost of revenues (combined) rose 11.9% in the first quarter of fiscal 2020 from the year-ago comparable quarter. Also, other costs of revenues increased 10.9% in the quarter, while selling, general and administrative expenses expanded 8.1%. We believe that unwarranted rise in costs and expenses might be detrimental to Tetra Tech's financials in the upcoming quarters.
- Concerns related to the U.S. federal business, high costs and headwinds related to international exposure might be concerning for Tetra Tech.
- ▼ The company derives a significant portion of revenues from the U.S. federal, and the U.S. state and local customers. Such customers usually award multi-year contracts. We believe that any changes in the terms and clauses, and funding of these contracts will be detrimental. Also, the company's services offered in mining, and oil & gas markets are highly cyclical and vulnerable to economic downturns, which in turn impact its financials. For instance, fluctuations in market prices of metals including uranium, precious metals, aluminum, copper, iron ore and potash can cause its mining clients to cancel or curtail their projects, thus adding to the woes. In addition, demand for its oil and gas services fluctuates, and depends on customers' willingness to spend to explore, develop, produce, and transport oil and natural gas. Moreover, international operations have exposed the company to the adverse impacts of macroeconomic cycles in the United States as well as unfavorable foreign currency movements. It is worth mentioning that approximately 34% of Tetra Tech's revenues were generated from international operations in the first quarter of fiscal 2020.

Revenues from the U.S. Federal customers (accounting for 28% of the quarter's revenues) rose 12% year over year on growth in environmental and water programs. Conversely, U.S. Commercial sales (24% of the quarter's revenues) grew 5% year over year, driven by an increase in the U.S. renewable energy and environmental remediation businesses. Also, the U.S. State and Local sales (14% of the quarter's revenues) decreased 7% due to weakness in disaster response business, partially offset by gain in the water infrastructure business. International sales (34% of the quarter's revenues) improved 25% on growth in renewable energy and UK environmental businesses.

The company reports revenues under the segments discussed below:

Net sales of Government Services Group were $329.7 million, up 8.7% year over year. The improvement was driven by healthy growth in broad-based environmental and water programs, partially offset by a decline in disaster response business.

Revenues from Commercial / International Services Group totaled $284.3 million, reflecting year-over-year growth of 13.9%. Results were driven by healthy growth in environmental consulting in the U.K. and the strengthening of renewable energy sales in North America.

Operating Margin

In the reported quarter, Tetra Tech's subcontractor costs totaled $183.6 million, reflecting growth of 11.9% from the year-ago quarter. Other costs of revenues were $504.3 million, up 10.9% year over year. Selling, general and administrative expenses were $46.4 million, up 8.1% year over year.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.
