Summary

UFP Industries' shares have outperformed the industry in the year-to-date period. This uptrend is primarily attributed to improving U.S. construction market as well as solid demand for repair and remodeling activities. Also, buyout gains and shareholders' rewards are expected work to its advantage. Also, the company's ability to leverage fixed costs improves sales of higher-margin and value-added products that comprise a greater portion of the company's product mix. However, lower lumber pricing in the Industrial business, reduced selling prices and high labor costs are pressing concerns. Notably, earning estimates for 2020 have also moved south over the past 30 days, implying analysts' worry over the company's earnings growth potential.

Overview

Headquartered in Grand Rapids, MI, UFP Industries, Inc. is a holding company with its subsidiaries throughout North America, Europe, Asia, and Australia. The company supplies wood, wood composite and other products in retail, industrial, and construction market.

The company classifies its top-line results based on its end markets. A brief snapshot of the end market sales has been provided below:

UFP Retail (accounting for 31.9% of 2019 gross sales) includes Do-It-Yourself retailers, and distributors, pro-dealers and other retail customers.

UFP Industrial (30.6%) consists of packaging, crating and other products for manufacturers.

UFP Construction (37.5%) comprises Residential Construction, Commercial Construction and Concrete Forming and Manufactured Housing sales.

Residential Construction includes builders of single and multifamily homes. Commercial Construction and Concrete Forming includes non-residential construction and concrete forming. Manufactured Housing includes manufactured housing and recreational vehicles business.

Reasons To Buy:

▲ Acquisition Strategies to Drive Growth: Acquisitions have been UFP Industries' preferred mode of solidifying its product portfolio and leveraging new business opportunities. On Sep 16, 2019, one of its affiliates acquired Hartford, WI-based Pallet USA, LLC. Also, on Aug 14, 2019, it acquired Bonner, MT-based Northwest Painting, Inc. These buyouts are expected to expand its value-added offerings, and market presence in Midwest and Northwest.

Overall, acquisitions contributed 1% each to total unit sales growth in the second and third quarters of 2019. During the third and fourth quarters of 2019, acquisitions contributed 2% to unit sales growth in the Industrial business. The company plans more acquisition activities in 2020.

In addition to adding meaningful businesses to its portfolio, the company believes in disposing of non-core assets. Aiming operational efficiency and best use of its resources, the company divested its Medley, FL-based property in January 2018.

▲ Solid Product Innovation: UFP Industries anticipates gaining from the existing product portfolio, initiatives to better production efficiency and solid growth opportunities in the industrial market. Also, its efforts to introduce new products will be a boon. In 2019, new product sales grew 13% from the year-ago period.

New products continue to be an important top-line driver for UFP Industries, especially for the retail business. Retail unit sales improved 10%, backed by new product growth and market share gains. The company has launched UFP-Edge Timeless that features nickel gap smooth shiplap in a variety of colors. It remains confident of the expansion of its portfolio of Cavalry Blue, UFP-Edge products, Deckorators brand products and professional installations. Its ProWood FR and Outdoor Essentials products also raise hopes.

Notably, these new products are expected to grow at faster pace in 2020. Meanwhile, for 2020, it has removed $126 million of 2019 sales from the new products category, although it will continue to sell these products. The company is targeting $475 million new product sales for 2020.

Over the long term, UFP Industries aims to grow sales roughly 4-6% above positive GDP growth. New product sales are anticipated to constitute at least 10% of total sales while earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortization growth will exceed unit-sales growth. Also, the company anticipates offering high-quality products to its customers, having started new development and testing facilities.

▲ Rewarding Shareholders: UFP Industries follows a consistent policy of rewarding its shareholders handsomely. On Feb 3, 2020, it announced changes in the frequency of dividend payments from semi-annual to quarterly. Also, it raised quarterly cash dividend by 25% to 12.5 cents a share, payable on Mar 15, 2020 to its shareholders of record on Mar 1, 2020.

It paid more than $24 million dividend at a semi-annual rate on Dec 31, 2019, reflecting a 11% increase from the prior year. Also, it has used roughly $25 million for repurchasing common shares during 2018, at average price of almost $29 per share.

UFP Industries stands to benefit from improving U.S. construction market, and solid demand for repair and remodeling activities. Also, buyout gains and shareholder reward will work in its favor.

UFP Industries will benefit from improving U.S. construction market and solid demand for repair and remodeling activities. Also, buyout gains and shareholders' reward will work in its favor.

Reasons To Sell:

▼ Rapid Lumber Market Swings: One of the major cost components of goods sold is the cost of lumber products. UFP Industries has no control over the costs and selling prices of lumber products, which are dependent on factors like government policies, environmental regulations, weather conditions, economic conditions and natural disasters.

An unusual rise in the cost of lumber products sold by primary producers will increase the cost of inventory and limit margins on fixed-priced lumber products while a decrease in costs will lead to lower profits by selling products indexed to the current lumber market.

The lumber market swings had a negative impact on various operations, which are primarily focused on variable price products. During fourth-quarter 2019, the Random Lengths Composite Index was up 4.8% from the prior year, while the Southern Yellow Pine Index was down 12%. In fact, overall lumber prices were down 25% in the third-quarter 2019 and southern yellow pine prices were fairly stable until September 2019. Also, in the second-quarter 2019, overall lumber prices and southern yellow pine prices were down nearly 37% and 29%, respectively.

This trend continued in 2020, with the current Composite Index up 7.7% and the Southern Yellow Pine Index down 17% from a year ago.

▼ Dependence on Housing Market & Influence of Federal Government Actions: UFP Industries' businesses are directly influenced by the U.S. housing market. Any untoward situation will bring about an unfavorable impact on the company's operations. The housing industry is cyclical, and is affected by consumer confidence levels, prevailing economic conditions and interest rates.

The federal government's actions related to economic stimulus, taxation and borrowing limits could affect consumer confidence and spending levels, which in turn could hurt both the economy and the housing market.

UFP Industries is exposed to risks arising from higher costs and expenses, along with rapid lumber market swings
