Summary

VeriSign's fourth-quarter 2019 results were mixed. While revenues increased on a year-over-year basis, earnings declined due to higher general & administrative expenses. However, the top line benefited from growth in .com and .net domain name registrations. VeriSign ended the reported quarter with 158.8 million .com and .net domain name registrations, up 3.9% year over year. Also, the renewal of the .com contract and price hikes for the .com and .net domain names bode well for the near term. Nevertheless, increasing expenses may prove to be a drag on profitability. Intensifying competition from the likes of Google's free public domain name service is also a concern. Notably, its shares have underperformed the industry on a year-to-date basis.

Overview

Based in Reston, VA, VeriSign Inc. provides Internet infrastructure services that include domain name registry services and infrastructure assurance services. Its only reportable segment includes Registry Services.

VeriSign reported revenues of $1.232 billion in 2019. U.S. customers contributed 63% of total revenues, while 37% came from foreign customers.

Registry services operate the .com, .net, .cc, .tv, .gov, .jobs, .edu and .name domain name directories. With respect to the .com, .net and .name domains, the company has agreements with The Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) that makes it the exclusive registrar of these domain names. The company has an agreement with the U.S. Department of Commerce with respect to the .com domain.

Other agreements make it the exclusive registry for the .tv and .cc country code top-level domains (ccTLDs) and the provider of back-end systems for all .gov, .jobs and .edu domain names. It also provides internationalized domain name (IDN) services for websites in local languages. VeriSign's gTLDs and ccTLDs can support standards-compliant registrations in more than 100 different native languages and scripts.

The company's operations infrastructure consists of three secure data centers in Dulles, VA; New Castle, DE; and Fribourg, Switzerland as well as more than 160 resolution sites around the world.

Domain names can be registered for between one and 10 years. The .com and .net fees are charged as per agreement terms with ICANN and based on prior approval. The .name fees are charged as per terms of agreement with ICANN, while the .gov registry fees are based on the terms of agreement with the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA).

On Dec 5, 2018, VeriSign completed the sale of its rights, economic benefits and obligations in all customer contracts related to the Security Services business, which primarily consisted of Distributed Denial of Service (DDoS) Protection Services and Managed Domain Name System (DNS) Services, to NeuStar, Inc.

Reasons To Buy:

- ▲ The renewal of the .com contract and price hikes for the .com and .net domain names remain drivers of VeriSign's top-line growth. An expected increase in domain name base is the key catalyst. The company is expected to benefit from growing Internet consumption globally. Per Amendment 35 to the Cooperative Agreement between VeriSign and the U.S. Department of Commerce (DOC), signed on Oct 26, 2018, the company can now pursue with ICANN a price increase of up to 7% for .com domain names, in each of the last four years of six-year period of the Registry Agreement.
- ▲ The introduction and expansion of TLDs is an adjacent growth opportunity. The company has been a part of ICANN's new gTLD program by applying for Internationalized Domain Names (IDN) for .com and .net, which will expand the company's business significantly. Additionally, international expansion through IDNs will increase VeriSign's penetration into the growing APAC markets. Furthermore, the company will be offering a few IDNs as standalone domain names, giving more flexibility to users and that too without the need for obtaining approval from ICANN. The company has already rolled out IDNs in Japan and is now gearing up to make the service available for Korea as well. This apart, the company has also entered into an agreement for the .web TLD which will open more avenues for growth in VeriSign's registry business.
- ▲ VeriSign's balance sheet strength and solid cash flow generation ability make it an attractive stock for investors. As of Dec 31, 2019, the company's cash and cash equivalents (including marketable securities) were approximately $1.22 billion. Moreover, the company generated cash flow of $754 million from operations for 2019 compared with $698 million for 2018. Free cash was $714 million in 2019 compared with $660.8 million in 2018.
- ▲ VeriSign has been utilizing its robust cash flows to return value to investors through share buybacks. The company repurchased 3.9 million shares for an aggregate cost of $738 million in 2019. VeriSign has $1 billion available under its current share repurchase program.

The key positives for VeriSign are renewal of the .com contract and price hikes for the .com and .net domain names.

Reasons To Sell:

- ▼ Under the agreement with ICANN, VeriSign is subject to certain restrictions in the operation of .com on pricing, bundling and use of registrars. However, these restrictions do not apply to ccTLDs and the new IDNs. The introduction of new IDN TLDs and gTLDs by ICANN will also intensify competition. An increase in domain name availability in the marketplace while introducing new choices for end-users could also contribute to their confusion around brand preference, which, in turn, could have an adverse effect on the company's business. Moreover, the new gTLDs are yet to gain much traction in Japan and Korea adding to the concerns.
- ▼ Another significant headwind for VeriSign is the soft growth in the active domain name business for .com and .net TLDs. While new domain name registration has witnessed an uptrend over the past year, overall renewal rate for domains have been softening, especially for first-time renewals. The company has cited search algorithm changes and macroeconomic headwinds in some key regions (like China) as the primary factors behind these declines. Google's free public domain name service is also a major competitor.
- ▼ We note that VeriSign currently has a trailing 12-month P/S ratio of 19.59, which compares unfavorably with that of the Zacks industry. The ratio is higher than the median of 18.64 and is closer to the high end of the valuation range over this period. Hence, valuation looks slightly stretched from a P/S perspective.

VeriSign can be affected by soft growth in the active domain name business for .com and .net TLDs.

Recent News

On Jan 3, VeriSign released a proposed agreement with the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) to amend the .com Registry Agreement (RA). The new proposed amendment updates the .com registry agreement to reflect certain changes under amendment 35 to the cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Commerce, including the pricing changes.

According to the terms of the proposed Letter of Intent, VeriSign will have a one-time commitment to provide $4 million per year over five years, beginning Jan 1, 2021, for ICANN to support activities to preserve and enhance the security, stability and resiliency of the DNS and the Internet.

The new terms will remain open to public comment until Feb 14.

On Dec 19, VeriSign announced that the third quarter of 2019 closed with 359.8 million domain name registrations across all top-level domains (TLDs), up 5.1 million domain name registrations, or 1.4% sequentially. Domain name registrations have grown by 17.4 million, or 5.1% year over year.

Zacks Style Scores

The Zacks Style Score is as a complementary indicator to the Zacks rating system, giving investors a way to focus on the highest rated stocks that best fit their own stock picking preferences.

Academic research has proven that stocks with the best Value, Growth and Momentum characteristics outperform the market. The Zacks Style Scores rate stocks on each of these individual styles and assigns a rating of A, B, C, D and F. We also produce the VGM Score (V for Value, G for Growth and M for Momentum), which combines the weighted average of the individual Style Scores into one score. This is perfectly suited for those who want their stocks to have the best scores across the board.

Value Score	F
Growth Score	C
Momentum Score	A
VGM Score	D

As an investor, you want to buy stocks with the highest probability of success. That means buying stocks with a Zacks Recommendation of Outperform, which also has a Style Score of an A or a B.
